Dear State of South Carolina:

Last December our family was moving from a rural area in Lancaster County, South Carolina to our current location in Pageland, South Carolina. While preparing for our move, we needed to find a company that could pack up and move our household from Lancaster to Pageland. In the process, we found that there are not any reputable moving companies in the Lancaster/Chesterfield area that are licensed to move household goods. We ended up having to get family members to help us move.

We will be relocating again in the upcoming months and once again are searching for a company that is licensed to move household goods. In that process, I have spoken with Hunter Matthews of Modern Day Movers. Currently, Modern Day Movers is not licensed as a Household Goods Carrier, but we would like to recommend that they be approved for licensing. Hunter has been in the moving business for many years under the employment of another company and comes with high recommendations. This approval would provide a current need in our area that would eliminate the hefty "travel" expenses that other licensed companies expect to travel to our area for a move.

I would be glad to speak with you personally if you have any questions.

Sincerely,

Shannon H Threatt
